

WS 3: Writing an interior monologue

*"Prove true, imagination, O prove true,
That I, dear brother, be now tane for you!"
[...]*

*"He named Sebastian. I my brother know
Yet living in my glass [...]" (CSS, III, iv, l. 326-331)*

Task:

Read the end of Act 3 Scene 4 (l. 324-end). Write an interior monologue from the perspective of Viola. Consider how she feels about the latest news on her brother Sebastian and give voice to her thoughts and feelings. The following info box might help you.

How to write an interior monologue

In an interior monologue a character provides insight into his/her/their inner thoughts and feelings. Thus, the reader/audience gets an idea about what the character personally is feeling/going through/thinking etc.

In an interior monologue a character can ...

- ... pick conflicts or problems as a central theme.
- ... talk about personal fears, whishes, hopes, dreams.
- ... make plans for their future.
- ... think about past events.
- ... elaborate on their feelings.

When writing an interior monologue you should remember to ...

- ... use first-person perspective.
- ... use appropriate punctuation marks.
- ... focus on thoughts and feelings which the character experiences at present (i.e. at this particular moment of the play).
- ... take the character's behaviour and mindset into account.

Adapted from: <https://poemanalysis.com/definition/interior-monologue/> [05.03.2023]

Here you can collect some first ideas or bullet points. You can also use a separate piece of paper as for the interior monologue later on.

---

---

---

---

---

Except where otherwise noted, this material by Maarit Peters is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International license (CC-BY). This material was created with the free version of Canva.